Then and Now

Why does a prison need a library anyway?

Benefits of a prison library:

- Provide a safe and relaxed environment with constructive ways to spend time
- Help create a literate environment with special attention to prisoners with low literacy levels and non-native language backgrounds
- Allows inmates to be life-long learners
- Allows freedom of choice (a rarity in prison) and reminds inmates that there are still aspects of their lives they can control

How a library with limited internet access ended up using a cloud-based cataloguing system

Email message from Karen Cook-Newbury,

"We do not have wifi in the Centre ...Currently, students request books through their instructors and the instructors pull them and deliver them to the students. This is why having the library catalogued would be so ideal at this time. The instructors need to know what is there and where to find it. We also need to be able to track what students, on what living units (their address) took out the books and returned them. Before COVID students would have access to the library and would choose their own books. We would keep a borrowing Excel spreadsheet. This worked, but we still were not easily able to see what books were missing, popular, where they were, etc. Also, with the spreadsheet kept on a USB and many instructors using it the formatting, and other things would often be changed and/or lost.

How we went from this...

"Bobbi Lee confronts white Canadian society on the ground that it stole from the First Nations of this country. A tough autobiography of an Indian woman's life from the mud flats of Second Narrows Bridge, Vancouver, to the Toronto of the sixties and seventies, Lee Maracle gives us an important sense of the tough terrain of struggle toward political consciousness which all oppressed peoples undertake. Bobbi Lee is a hopeful work for recovering the possibilities of envisioning a world where we are [...]"

Challenges we Face and Continue to Overcome

It's jail!

- Getting in . . .
and oh yeah getting out.
- Searching and sniffing
- Disruption and churn
- Technology
- No permanent Librarian position

Outcomes: Here to There

The Two-Year Plan

MAJOR POINTS OF THE IFLA GUIDELINES FOR LIBRARY SERVICES TO PRISONERS

✓ Written policies for the provision of library services in prisons should be in place, clearly stating mission, goal and funding source.	✓ The design should include functional lighting, computer use, climate control.
✓ Local library procedures and long-term plans should be developed.	✓ The library floor space should be large enough to accommodate user activities, staff functions, and materials storage and display.
• Libraries and associated services should be accessible to all prisoners.	• The prison library should make use of current information technology to the extent possible without compromising prison security.
• At least 100 popular and current books, or two books per prisoner, should be available in each housing unit and changed at least once per month.	• All prison libraries, regardless of size, should be supervised/managed by a professional librarian.
• Every prisoner should be able to select at least two titles per week.	• Library staff should be given opportunities to participate in professional organizations and to attend professional development and continuing education programs.
✓ The library should be situated at a central location within the prison, preferably near the education department.	Lehmann and Locke, 2005
